The leopard whiptail ray that killed an Underwater World Singapore (UWS) senior diver last year had never displayed aggressive (16) behaviour and had adapted very well to its environment. However, when Mr Chan Kum Weng and the other divers tried to catch it at around 2 p.m. on October 4, it attacked him suddenly with the venomous (17) barb near the base of its tail. In an inquiry into Mr Chan's death yesterday, the court heard that the barb pierced (18) his chest and he was pronounced (19) dead about 1½ hours later. The State Coroner who found his death to be a tragic misadventure, said, "As stingrays are generally (20) shy creatures, their initial reaction to a threat would be to swim away. Nevertheless, they would resort to attacking a perceived threat when cornered or surprised."

Section I: Comprehension Open-ended (20 marks)

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80.

Mr Roberts who lived across the street from our house died of old age. My grandfather, my father and Uncle Leon had to go to the church for the funeral service but they were going in two cars.

Recently, Uncle Leon bought a new car and insisted on driving it every chance he had. However, my grandfather refused to travel in any car driven by Uncle Leon. He said that Uncle Leon often did not look at the road when driving.

"I have to look for road signs," Uncle Leon replied a trifle bitterly.

"You cannot drive and look for road signs at the same time. You have to keep your eyes on the road!" my grandfather commented.

After the funeral service held at the church, all the cars got in line to go to the cemetery. When my father and grandfather returned home from the cemetery before Uncle Leon did, I could see that my grandfather was visibly angry about something.

"He just did what you told him to do, which is typical of him. Instead of looking for signs, he must have looked at the road when he drove and got lost," said my father in exasperation.

My grandfather shouted, "So he got lost and never showed up for the burial at the cemetery! A fine time to stop looking for signs! All he had to do was stay in the procession. I really doubt he could miss the cemetery!"

My father defended Uncle Leon, saying that he might have a flat tyre. Upon hearing that, my grandfather became angrier. We knew my grandfather was upset over the death of his close friend and my father was trying to placate him. However, it was clearly a futile attempt. Just then, there was the sound of the key in the door. Uncle Leon came in and found himself looking down the barrel of my grandfather's accusing finger. My grandfather demanded to know where Uncle Leon had been after the funeral service and if he had seen them burying Mr Roberts. Uncle Leon shook his head.

He explained, "I was at a different cemetery and saw them burying someone else. After we left the church, there was a traffic jam. When the traffic started moving, I saw I was behind the church limousine. In front of the it, I thought it was Mr Robert's funeral vehicle. I guess I got in the wrong lane. I had no way of knowing that I was following a different funeral vehicle to a different cemetery. It was not until I stopped at the cemetery gate did I realise I was at the wrong funeral. I was the only car in the procession, besides the funeral vehicle and the limousine. After I got out of my car, the widow came up and clasped my hand, thanking me for my kindness and the comfort I brought. The pastor also came up and shook my hand so I had to stay where I was. I had to be respectful to the dead! I couldn't just apologise and bid them goodbye!"

My grandfather stared at Uncle Leon. Nobody said anything for a while. The next morning when the newspapers came, there was a short article which read:

Small-time criminal, Lefty Brown, fatally wounded in a holdup, was buried at Fair View Cemetery yesterday. Cemetery official said only the widow and an unidentified escort accompanied the body to its final resting place.
