Mr Bock sells fish in the market near his home. During the wee hours of the morning, he goes to Jurong Fishery Port to select the freshest fish for his customers. He chooses the more common fishes such as sea bass, red snapper and salmon to sell at his stall. Sometimes, he sells crabs and prawns too!

Mr Bock will be at the market by six o'clock to open his stall. As his fishes are fresh and cheap, many housewives love to buy fish from him. Usually, the salmon is the first to be sold out. By eleven o'clock, Mr Bock closes his stall and takes the biggest fish home for Mrs Bock to cook.

One day, Mrs Bock was preparing dinner for the family. She took out the fish that her husband had brought home that morning. As she was washing the fish, she noticed something shiny in its mouth. She opened the mouth and pulled out a diamond ring. Mrs Bock smiled as she looked at the precious ring. Jacky decided to get some magnets after reading a book about them. For two weeks, he skipped recess and went without food. He had saved all his pocket money to buy a box of magnets.

Before Jacky could play with them, his mother found out what he had done. She was angry and took the box of magnets from him. Then she kept them in a drawer in the kitchen. Jacky cried loudly.

At that moment, Grandma walked into the kitchen with her sewing kit. Jacky ran into her and the kit dropped onto the floor. Out came her scissors, threads and a box of pins. Pins were everywhere on the floor!

Jacky's eyes brightened when he saw the pins. He took out a magnet from the drawer quickly. Then, he glided it across the floor. Almost like magic, all the pins were attracted to the magnet. Soon, Jacky was able to put all the pins back into the box.
