Question 21

After Sparklewick had instructed Sam to scrub the floor, he hurried off to town. Sam groaned. He was exhausted from cleaning up the workshop.
Sam had spent all morning cleaning the magician's workshop. "How will I ever learn to be a magician like Sparklewick?" he moaned. Just then, Sam heard footsteps on the staircase. A moment later, Sparklewick appeared. "Sam, I have to go to town!" he bellowed, waving a long shopping list. "You are not allowed to try any magic spells while I am gone!" he warned.
Immediately, the mop began to twitch. It shook and shuddered. Then slowly, it grew two skinny arms and legs! "Now," Sam commanded the mop, "go and mop the floor! Be quick about it!" The mop dashed off. In no time, the floor was all mopped and cleaned. Suddenly, Sparklewick appeared. He glared at Sam. Sam trembled from head to toe. Sam knew he was in hot soup! He ran off as fast as lightning.
Soon, Sam got bored and decided to try a magic spell that he had seen Sparklewick cast on a mop. Taking a deep breath, he said the magic words, "Abracadabra! Bring this mop to life!"

Passage 2 (8 marks)
Read the passage.

"What a beautiful dress you have sewn, Mother!" exclaimed Mary. "The queen will love it!"

As Mother was not feeling well, Mary decided to take the dress to the queen.

"It is starting to snow, dear," said Mother worriedly.

"I love the snow!" Mary insisted. Her face lit up when Mother finally let her go. She put the dress into the box and set off.

The weather outside was harsh and cold. Determined to reach the palace, Mary trudged on. A sudden gust of wind caused Mary to lose hold of the box.

Mary's eyes widened in shock. She dashed after the box, leaping forward and grabbing it. Unfortunately, the wind had torn the box open! The dress went flying away. Feeling sorrowful, Mary sat in the snow as she knew that Mother's hard work had been wasted.

Eventually, she picked herself up. She decided to tell the queen the truth. Mustering her courage, Mary hurried off to the palace. "Everything will be all right. The queen will understand," she comforted herself.
