Section H: Comprehension (Selected Response) (5 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Helen packed a small suitcase, said goodbye to her mother, and hurried out of the house to catch the bus to the train station. There was no one else waiting at the bus stop, so it looked as if a bus had just left. Helen looked at her watch anxiously: it was already two o'clock. Her train would leave at half-past two, and since it would take at least twenty minutes to reach the station, she did not have much time to spare, even if a bus came along at once.

Just then, a taxi came slowly down the road. Helen knew the fare to the station would be at least $8. It was more than she could afford, but she quickly made up her mind that it would be well worth the extra expense so that she could reach the train station in time. When she got into the taxi, she immediately told the driver she was in a rush. He said he would take a short cut.

Suddenly, as they were turning from a side street into the main road, the taxi ran into a car. There was a loud crash and Helen was thrown forward so suddenly that she hit her head on the front seat rather violently. Both drivers got out of their vehicles and started arguing with each other. Helen tried to stop them but neither of them took any notice of her.

Helen was quite sure she was going to miss her train although she was not far from the station. She was wondering what to do when a bus came into sight, going in the direction of the station. Helen got her suitcase out of the taxi and ran towards the bus. The bus had stopped to let some passengers off. The bus captain had seen her running for the bus and did not move off until she boarded. Helen managed to make it to the station in time after all. If she had waited for the taxi driver to stop arguing, she would have missed it for sure.

Section I: Comprehension (Open-Ended) (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 41 to 47.

George headed to the backyard where Becky, his sister, was riding her tricycle. With a deep sigh, he said, "I might as well make the best of things." He had grabbed a book earlier and decided to settle under a shady tree.

Earlier that morning, George had watched his mother leave. He sat down and stared glumly at the calendar. It was 3 April – Tomato Planting Day. George had looked forward to planting tomatoes with Aunt Joy. Instead of a fun-filled day ahead of him, he had to babysit Becky. Mother had remembered her dental appointment only that morning and there was no possibility to find a babysitter so quickly.

An hour later, George heard loud voices. Looking up from his book, he saw Tom seated on Becky's tricycle. George had never liked this troublesome intruder from next door who paid them regular visits. Becky stubbornly clung to the handle bars, trying to keep Tom from riding it. Tom was saying, "You're too small. Let me ride it!" At that point, George saw Becky raise her hand.

George ran towards them as he knew that there was going to be a fight. "What shall I do? How can I stop this?" thought George. Just then, the answer came. "Sorry Tom, Becky has to leave. We are going to be late. We have to help Aunt Joy plant her seeds. Come on, let's go." George grabbed Becky's hand, locked the tricycle in the garage and hurried her away before any more trouble could begin.

Aunt Joy beamed when she saw the children at her garden gate. She explained to them what had to be done. George raked the soil and made long grooves in the surface. Becky planted the seeds, then covered them carefully with soil. The job was completed in two hours.

taken me at least five hours to plant the seeds all by myself!" She was especially impressed with the handiwork of her five-year-old niece. As a gesture of her gratitude, she rewarded them with cash and cookies. The day for George had turned out better than expected.
