SECTION D: GRAMMAR CLOZE (SUBJECT-VERB AGREEMENT) (4 X 1 mark)

Read the following passage carefully. Underline the correct word from the words given in the brackets.

Does your brain sometimes work faster than your mouth? When that (19) [happen / happens] , you usually have errors in speech known as spoonerisms. A spoonerism (20) [occur / occurs] when you accidentally switch consonants, vowels or other sounds in words.

Spoonerisms can be particularly funny when the mixed-up version still (21) [make / makes] sense. Some examples (22) [include / includes] "a blushing crow" instead of "a crushing blow" and "shake a tower" rather than "take a shower". Because of how funny the results of these errors in speech can be, people sometimes use them on purpose as a play on words.

SECTION E: EDITING (6 x 1) marks

Each of the underlined words contains either a grammatical error or a spelling error. Put the correct word in each of the boxes.

(23) [ ]

E-scooters may be fun, but are they safe? As you avoid e-scooters zip on the sidewalk, you might have experienced a couple of close shaves with death. E-scooters (24) [ ] have swarmed Singapore's streets recently. However, they bring in with them a wave of scooter-related injuries and even deaths.

(25) [ ]

Why are e-scooters dangerous? A collizion with an e-scooter packs a great amount of force. One who is hit by the device could suffer serious or deadly injuries. The elderly (26) [ ] and young children, in partikuler, are at risk. It takes time for e-scooters to slow down and (27) [ ] come to a stop. Thus, accidents are likely to happen if a rider sees a pedestrain too late. (28) [ ] One of the big risks of an e-scooter accident is brain injury. This can happen when one falls and hits his head on the ground at high speed. Other common e-scooter injuries are fractures, dislocations, sprains and abrasions.

If you ride an e-scooter, do abide by the guidelines under the Active Mobility Act (AMA) to keep yourself safe and avoid posing a danger to others on shared paths.

SECTION G: COMPREHENSION 1 (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions 31 to 39.

Recently, Johor's Kim Kim River was seriously polluted. Factories nearby had dumped their chemical waste illegally into the river. Thousands were affected by the toxic and pungent fumes given off by the waste. It is a timely reminder for Singaporeans to take care of our precious resource – water.

About four decades ago, our rivers were in a sad state. Up to the 1970s, squatters*, hawkers and factories crowded the banks of the Singapore River. Improper disposal of garbage and waste along with oil spills from bumboats led to severe water pollution. At the same time, the Kallang River was also polluted by nearby pig and duck farms. Our then Prime Minister, Mr Lee Kuan Yew, called for the clean-up of Singapore's rivers in 1977. He believed that keeping our water source free from pollution must be a way of life. He challenged the Ministry of Environment to make fishing and other recreational activities possible in the Singapore River and the Kallang River in ten years.

About 4 000 squatters and hawkers were relocated during the clean-up. The government provided flats for the squatters while street hawkers were shifted to hawker centres. Hundreds of bumboats were moved to a new facility at Pasir Panjang. Foul-smelling mud and rubbish were removed from the banks and the riverbeds. Pig and duck farms were closed down.

The clean-up was successfully completed in the given time. The government started the Clean Rivers Education Programme in 1987. Its goal was to raise awareness of the hazards of dumping waste into Singapore's waterways and to encourage people to keep them clean. These days, education programmes are run by the Waterways Watch Society (WWS), a local organisation.

Today, the Singapore River is the venue for events like the Singapore River Festival. People cruise down the river to enjoy the sights. The Kallang River is a popular site for recreational activities such as dragon boating, canoeing and water-skiing.

SECTION H: COMPREHENSION 2 (10 marks)
Read the following passage carefully and answer questions 40 to 45.

In the middle of the courtyard, two children were wrestling for a tin.

"It's mine! I found it!" Boon raged as he clutched the tin to his chest, protecting it from Ling, a taller and stronger girl. He had seen it next to her while she was sketching on the sandy ground. She knew he wanted to play with her tin, but she said nothing about it. When she left to get some water, he saw his chance. When Ling came back and saw Boon playing with her tin, she blew her top.

"It's mine! Mother gave it to me," insisted Ling.

When Boon saw his mother walk out of their house, he shouted, "Mama! Ling is trying to snatch my tin away!" Mrs Lee put down her basket of laundry at once.

"No, I'm not! You took it when I wasn't around!" screamed Ling, tugging at the tin more fiercely. In the struggle, Ling managed to push Boon down and sat on his chest. The scrawny boy squirmed and gave a pitiful yelp, the tin still in his grasp.

Seeing that, Mrs Lee fumed, "Mrs Tan! Your girl is attacking my son! Come now and stop her at once!" Her voice screeched across the courtyard.

Mrs Tan hurried out of her house. She looked wearily at the battling children. She knew it was Ling's tin. It was a Cadbury tin that she had retrieved from the rubbish dump. When Ling saw her mother, she pleaded, "Help me, Mother! You gave it to me! He's stealing!"

"How dare you call my son a thief?" screamed Mrs Lee, pulling Ling off Boon. "What proof have you got that the tin is yours?"

Proof? Ling's eyes lit up. "Yes, I have proof! I've scratched a picture on the base of the tin. It is a smiling face," she announced confidently.

Mrs Lee grabbed the tin from her son's hand and turned it over. Indeed, there were two circles with a curve beneath, matching Ling's description. Boon's jaw dropped in surprise. Mrs Lee's cheeks coloured in embarrassment. She promptly returned the tin to Ling. With her lips pressed in a thin line, she shoved her son forward to apologise. Boon uttered a "sorry" to Ling. Thus, the case was closed.

Mrs Lee turned to her son and muttered sharply, "What do you have to say about your actions?" Ashamed, Boon confessed to the two misdeeds he had committed.
