Section F: Comprehension 1 (10 marks)

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

David and Sam were walking together in a forest. They made a pact to look out for each other. Suddenly, they heard a frightening sound. They turned around and saw an enormous bear. It was growling menacingly at them. The boys froze in their tracks.

Although bears will normally leave people alone if they just stay still, that bear started advancing towards the boys. Panic-stricken, David simply ran off and climbed up a tree, leaving Sam behind. Sam stood rooted to the ground. He did not have time to escape, so he lay down on the ground and stayed as still as a statue. The bear came up to Sam and sniffed his head. Sam remained motionless.

After a while, the bear lumbered off. David, who had been watching, climbed down when he was certain that the bear was gone for good. He quickly went up to Sam, who was walking away.

"I saw the bear go near to your ear as though he wanted to say something," David joked. "Did he tell you anything?" he asked. Looking at David, Sam replied harshly, "Yes, he did. He told me not to walk with a friend who would leave you behind when there's trouble."

Section G: Comprehension 2 (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

When Little Sparrow was beginning to learn about flying and singing, his mother said to him, "Sing behind thick bushes so that bird catchers will not catch you. They may praise your singing and admire your brilliant feathers but be wary of them. You must think nothing of their praises or their admiration. Once you are caught and put in a cage, you'll lose your freedom forever. You'll face only iron bars and see neither sunrise nor sunset."

The young bird had heard the warning and advice of his parents and his relatives many times. His aunt echoed it. His grandmother talked at length about it. They sounded like broken records, repeating over and over again. Hence, their warnings fell on deaf ears.

Little Sparrow flew wherever he liked and sang whenever he pleased. He laughed at the crows for being so ugly and noisy. He looked down on the hens that could only produce cackling noises. He spoke disrespectfully of all other birds. He sang his merry songs to the passers-by. "What beautiful singing, they praised as they stopped to listen to him. Little Sparrow was pleased. He sang on the fence, on windowsills, on pillars and poles. He had thrown caution to the wind.

One day, Little Sparrow flew into a garden. He started to sing. Something shot up from below. Before he could fly away, Little Sparrow found himself glued to a few sticks smeared with glue. He pulled and struggled. His wings were caught in the glue too. Just then, a man appeared. With a grin, he took Little Sparrow into the house. He removed the glue from Little Sparrow's feathers and feet. Then, he put him into a cage.

Only then did Little Sparrow remember his mother's words, as tears filled his eyes.
