Dolphins are regarded as the friendliest creatures in the sea. The more we learn about dolphins, the more we realise that they have (16) many personalities than people previously imagined. Their primary (17) purpose is to look after other dolphins when they are ill, care for pregnant mothers and protect the weakest in their community. Scientists have yet to come up with a plausible (18) explanation as to how these emotional creatures communicate with one another without the need for language. Could the level of intelligence of these mammals surpass (19) that of mankind? The assumption that mankind is more superior to dolphins is false. On the contrary (20), the more we discover about these remarkable creatures, the less superior we look when we destroy them and their ecosystem.

COME & DISCOVER THE ARTS IN CREATIVE WAYS!

Where: Jalan Newton Community Centre

The ARTS ARENA is an annual event that began on a small scale in 2015 aiming to spread the love of the arts among the community. This event is organised by The Singapore Arts Society (SAS).

For the month of September 2019, the ARTS ARENA will feature different activities to promote the arts. These activities include:

- A one-day art and craft carnival where you can visit booths to admire and make art pieces.
- Music & dance performances will be put up by the students of various primary school over 3 weeks.

For more information on the activities, please visit www.sas.com/theartsarena

What participants say about the Arts Arena:

"When I was little, I would whip out my paintbrushes every weekend and use materials at home to create my art pieces. In today's fast-paced world, the young do not know how to appreciate the arts, and are constantly glued to their gadgets 24-7. This made me want to volunteer my time towards changing the habits of today's young, and to spread the love of the arts."

Mr Darren Teo,
a volunteer at the Arts Arena since 2015

"Last year, my favourite part was to learn art using paintbrushes and using recyclable materials to create an art piece. I can't wait to participate in this year's event once again!"

Sarah Tan,
aged 12

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

When David was thirteen, he and his mother encountered an unreliable durian seller who cheated them into buying durians of inferior quality. The seller made them pay for a superior quality durian. But when they got home, they found it was not what they had paid for.

This experience resulted in David starting a blog for durian lovers when he became an adult. That is where David and Sam first met online. They realised that they shared the same negative experiences with durian sellers and that their situation was not unique to them.

Tired of finding themselves at the mercy of unethical durian sellers and wanting to educate others, the two decided to start their own business. Both their parents were against their idea. What did they know about selling durians? The pair was so passionate about opening their business that their parents' opinion did not deter them.

It was tough going at the beginning and they were nervous because they knew nothing. Therefore, they decided to learn as much as possible about starting a durian business. They needed to know where to buy durians, how to cut open durians, and most importantly, how to tell the differences between durian types.

For the first month, they talked to durian lovers to see what type of durian people enjoyed eating. They made trips to durian farms in Malaysia and learnt about the 200 varieties of durians that were there. They talked to as many durian sellers as they could to get a better understanding of what it takes to run a durian business.

With information in hand, the partners were confident that they could operate a durian business and put things into motion. They gave up their good paying jobs and invested all their savings into this risky business. The night before their grand opening, neither of them could sleep. David kept thinking if he had forgotten something while Sam wondered how many durians they would sell.

Morning arrived and both men were at their stall early to make sure that everything was in place. At 10 a.m., acquaintances, friends and family came by. They wished them luck in their new business venture and bought durians from them. By 3 p.m., they had sold all their durians for the day. The partners were overjoyed with their success and decided to double the number of durians to sell the next day.

On the second day, the men were ready to do business. Again, the stall opened at the same time but there were no customers. An hour later, they had three customers. This was disappointing and they started doubting themselves. Time passed and by 7 p.m., they only sold half of what they had sold the day before. They were tired and had barely made any profit for that day. The two were down but not out. They promised each other that they would give themselves six months to see if their business would grow. They were going to show their parents they could do well. No matter how bad things were, they would bounce back.

It has been two years since they started and the business is doing well. However, it was a tough road to success. The work was physically and mentally exhausting. When asked if they had taken a risk in starting a durian business, they both agreed that it has been worthwhile.
