A special programme for the children of Summer Estate!

Every year, in celebration of Children's Day, the Summer Estate Residents' Club (SERC) organises fun and educational activities for the children living in our estate. Through the activities, the SERC hopes to broaden the children's experience in an enjoyable way. This year, the special programme of activities will run for a week. Head to Summer Community Centre and participate in the activities!

If you enjoy organising events and wish to serve our estate's residents, become a member of the SERC by writing in to info@serc.org.sg.

Kind words from our residents:

"My family moved to Summer Estate in September last year. All along, we had the impression that Children's Day was only celebrated at school. So, when we received a flyer about the Games Day organised to celebrate Children's Day, we were intrigued and decided to check it out. The event exceeded my expectations! I thought there would only be a handful of participants, but the attendance was overwhelming! The atmosphere was festive and snaking queues could be seen in front of every game station! We're definitely looking forward to this year's celebration!"

Mrs Janice Wee, resident of Block 73

Q25

"I love living in Summer Estate! Apart from the Children's Day activities, I also enjoy taking part in the other activities that are organised all year round! I don't think there is a livelier estate in Singapore! Everyone should join in the fun!"

Syafiq, a 12-year-old resident of Block 85

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

"Bye, Mum. I'm leaving for school," Ron uttered while stuffing his lunchbox into his school bag.

While making his way to the bus stop, Ron sighed. He was troubled. In line with the school's Kindness Week, Ron's form teacher, Mrs Jacob, had set a task for her students to go the extra mile and perform a kind act for a stranger. The deadline for the task was looming. In a coupre of days, Ron had to share his kind act with the class. However, he had had no breakthrough in showing kindness to a stranger thus far. Ron was especially disturbed by the fact that he was going to disappoint Mrs Jacob with his inability to accomplish the given task.

Soon, Ron boarded the bus to school and settled in a seat right behind the bus driver. Even though the bus driver had closed the doors of the bus, he did not drive off to the next stop. Instead, the bus driver inched the vehicle forward slightly and stopped for some moments. Out of the blue, the front door of the bus opened! The bus driver flung a plastic bag containing some bread towards a group of construction workers who were laying cables by the road. Then, he waved at them, closed the bus door and drove off. That baffled Ron! Did the bus driver do that because they were friends? Was this a daily routine of the bus driver?

Wanting to find out more, Ron steeled himself and asked the bus driver if he knew the construction workers. Shaking his head, the bus driver replied, "No, young man. I don't." To satisfy Ron's inquisitiveness, the bus driver went on to introduce himself as Uncle Lim before sharing his story. More than 30 years ago, when Uncle Lim was in his early twenties, he worked as a construction worker. Uncle Lim remembered toiling for long hours under the scorching sun just to help his family make ends meet. With a meagre salary, buying bread or a can of drink was considered a luxury for Uncle Lim.

One day, his caring supervisor advised, "Lim, you're still so young. Why don't you take some classes to upgrade yourself? Learn new skills so that you can find a job that can earn you more money." Taking those words seriously, Uncle Lim learnt how to drive a bus and switched trades eventually. As a bus driver, he took home a higher salary that provided his family with a more comfortable life over time. Knowing the hardships that construction workers had to face daily, Uncle Lim made it a habit to carry some bread with him whenever he drove to bless the construction workers he might encounter along the way.

Uncle Lim continued, "Never treat these unsung heroes of our society as invisible. Without them, we would never have the comforts that we enjoy today. Do appreciate them in little ways." Ron thanked Uncle Lim for sharing his inspiring story before he alighted from the bus. His wise words sparked an idea in Ron!

That day, when school ended, Ron rushed to the canteen and bought a dozen bottled drinks. Then, he made his way to the site where the construction workers were laying cables earlier that day. Upon reaching his destination, Ron approached the group of construction workers enthusiastically. While Ron handed each of them their gift, he smiled and thanked them for their hard work in contributing to the society. Seeing the smiles on their faces was priceless. Ron was glad to have learnt such a valuable lesson from Uncle Lim that day, one that he would always hold on to dearly in his heart. Ron looked forward to sharing this episode with Mrs Jacob and his classmates.
