We all know that good listening can be difficult. Psychologists believe (16) that the ability to listen to another person, to empathise with and to understand their point of view, is one of the highest forms (17) of intelligence. Being able to paraphrase another person's ideas and looking for cues on how another is feeling by paying attention to their gestures (18) are indications of skilful listening.

Sometimes, we say that we are listening but in reality, we are rehearsing (19) in our head what we are going to say when our partner has finished. Some students laugh at or put down other students' ideas. They interrupt and are unable to build upon another person's ideas.

A good listener tries to understand (20) what the other person is saying before giving her own point of view. This often leads to even better ideas than the ones we had at first.

Inspiring Excellence

Don't just survive school, THRIVE !

Life as a student can be an overwhelming experience, with so much to do and seemingly little time to do it all. In order to be a good student, you will need to do well in class, participate actively in co-curricular activities and prepare yourself for Primary Five.

Learning in school can be a fun and an exciting time, especially if you are committed to being successful.

As the saying goes, "The beautiful thing about learning is nobody can take it away from you." – B. B. King

Practise the following 6 tips and you will be on your way to become a good and successful student.

6 TIPS FOR SCHOOL SUCCESS

Be Present

Each missed class represents missed learning and missed discussions. Many schools today value participation more than your final grade. By being present in class as much as possible, you will make a good impression on your teachers too.

Avoid Procrastinating

No teacher will ever complain about her students finishing an assignment early. Setting aside time to complete one homework will make it easier to move on to the next and more likely to complete others on time.

Set regular performance goals. These small goals seem easy to do so you are less likely to procrastinate on them.

Take Notes

Your memory is never as good as you think it is. There will probably be plenty of things taking up space in your mind while at school.

Taking good notes will keep you engaged in classroom activities and give you a good foundation when studying for examinations.

Communicate with your Teacher

Your teachers want you to do well in class. Do stop by the staffroom after class to share about how you feel about the lessons. discuss your progress or subjects you are weak in. This can allow them to learn more about you, your strengths and weaknesses, and provide better advice to help you improve in your work.

Participate in Class

Ask questions, and give answers if teachers ask questions in class. Taking part actively in the class will keep you involved, and help you better understand what the teacher needs you to know.

Have a Growth Mindset

Most students' attitude towards a class dictates their success. Believe in yourself and trust that you can succeed, and you will increase your chances of succeeding. Think not about how difficult things are, but about how you are going to overcome those difficulties.

Read this passage and answer questions 29 to 33. (10 marks)

The ball was in the air. Jamie had his back to the goal. He knew he had to try it. If he scored an overhead kick in front of everyone in the field, it would be one of the best moments of his life.

It would silence Bryan and Tyler It would also mean, without a shadow of doubt, that he was the best player in the whole school. Although he had all the other skills, Jamie had never done a proper overhead kick before.

Jamie kept his eye on the ball as it seemed to hover above his shoulder. Then he launched his body into the air to meet it. In the air, Jamie snapped his legs back over in a scissors-like motion, just as he had seen the best players do it on television. He closed his eyes and waited for the contact with the ball. He wanted to hammer it home. He waited and hoped for the sweet sensation of the perfect strike he so badly wanted.

But it did not come. He felt his left foot barely scuff the side of the ball, slicing it sideways. And now, gravity played its part, dragging Jamie back down to earth with an alarming speed. Jamie crashed to the ground with a loud, wet, painful thud. His mind screamed with anger, while his body stung with the pain.

This was easily the second most embarrassing moment of Jamie's life. The only other time that he felt this way was when he was in primary school. He had wet himself at the end of assembly in front of the whole school and that was horrendous.

Jamie wanted his peers to think of him as a football genius. But right now, he looked like a total failure.

These matches at break-time were the most important part of the day for all the footballers at school. If you were on the winning side, you would be king for the rest of the day. If you lost, you would be the object of ridicule.

"Loser!" It was Bryan and Tyler.

"Forget about them," said Hugo, the only real friend Jamie had. Hugo shot Bryan and Tyler an angry glance as he consoled Jamie, "No point getting upset over them, just move on."

"Thanks," said Jamie, carefully avoiding Hugo's outstretched hand, which was filthy. They were good friends and Jamie appreciated Hugo standing up for him, but he also knew that Hugo was one of the dirtiest people he had ever met. Jamie always tried not to touch him directly. Still, no matter how weird Hugo was, he was never horrible to other kids in the way Bryan and Tyler were.
