Star Resort on Crescent Island: A Green Escape

SCHOOL HOLIDAYS PROMOTION NOW ON!

Historical Background

In late 1969, 7 families from Serene Island decided to move to a neighbouring deserted island which was eventually named Crescent Island. Between 1970 and 1973, more families from nearby islands came and added to the population. The early settlers had the foresight to start a school on the island and saw to it that their children received an education. Equipped with up-to-date knowledge and practical skills, the younger generation recognised the island's potential as a tourist destination. In 1985, a grand plan to build an eco-friendly seaside resort on Crescent Island was unveiled.

About Star Resort

The Star Resort was officially opened on Crescent Island in 1990 and the resort staff members have shown passionate enthusiasm and commitment ever since.

- Rejuvenate and reconnect with loved ones while relaxing on our lush resort grounds
- Create memorable experiences while exploring various recreational facilities and activities

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday	Sunday
Morning	Mass Exercise
Afternoon	Kayaking Expedition
Evening	Handicraft Workshop (for guests under 16)					Sandcastle Building Contest	Beach Volleyball
Night	Stargazing Workshop

- Play a part in saving the Earth by participating in our daily eco-friendly activities
  - Learn about renewable energy by taking a guided tour of our solar and wind energy facilities
  - Try your hand at creating reusable cutlery with coconut husks to replace single-use plastics
  - Plant or harvest fruits and vegetables at the resort's organic garden

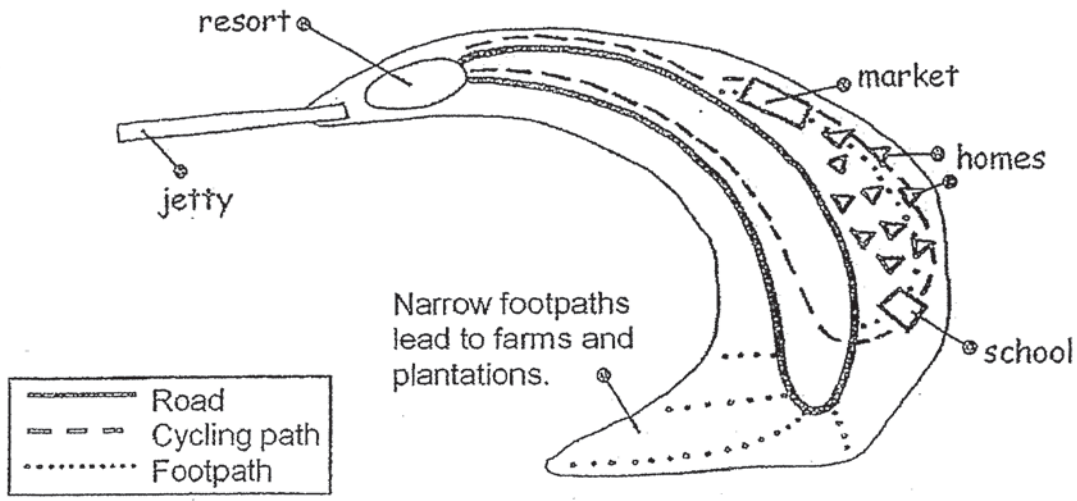

The success of Star Resort generated considerable interest in Crescent Island and opened up several exciting opportunities. A plan is underway to build bridges linking the island to several nearby islands. Resort guests and island dwellers would be able to explore the nearby islands more easily. In keeping with our eco-friendly concept, the bridges will only cater to pedestrians and cyclists. Apart from this, Star Resort has more plans in the pipeline. Stay tuned!

What Crescent Island looks like

Cars are not permitted on the island, but a free shuttle bus takes guests round the island. Approach the jetty staff for the shuttle bus schedule.

A cycling path and footpaths connect the island dwellers' homes to a school and local market. Handicraft shops and restaurants are located within some of the homes.

Star Resort
School Holidays Promotion

Sometimes, all it takes is for one person to change the course of another's life. As a journalist, I have been amazed (29)_____ the courage and resilience shown by the millennials I have interviewed. Some had to cope with life-changing illnesses or devastating disabilities while others (30)_____ to deal with problematic parents who gave them woe after woe to contend with.

In all of these interviews, what stood out was how these individuals had someone who played a positive role (31)_____ their lives. That someone could be a family member, a friend (32)_____ a teacher.

One example is Mr Lim Wei Wen, 35. He was a former gangster (33)_____ life was changed for good by his fencing coach, the late Alexey Karpov. Growing up, Mr Lim's father was in jail and his mother had abandoned him to flee (34)_____ the loan sharks hounding her over gambling debts. Mr Lim, who won Singapore's first medal in fencing in the 2014 Asian Games, shared that he had been judged by people his whole life, but Coach Karpov believed in him. He saw the potential in Mr Lim and trained him every day for a year for free. Mr Lim's coach made him believe that with passion and love, everything (35)_____ possible. Mr Lim believed that his life only changed (36)_____ Coach Karpov had given him hope.

People like Mr Lim may not have a good start in life (37)_____ that did not stop them from fulfilling (38)_____ potential. His life story gives us hope that there are unsung heroes out there making the world a better place.

Interestingly, the otters in Singapore belong to a unique hybrid population – the result of a union between both species, making it a surviving population (62) _____ nearly went extinct.

Over time, these otters grew on Singaporeans. When asked to vote for a mascot that would (63)_____ Singapore in its 2016 National Day celebrations, citizens voted wholeheartedly for the otter.

Despite its popularity among humans, otters still face threats. The mammals share the waterways with another predator, the water monitor lizard, which (64) _____ on otter pups. Other man-made threats could put these otters' (65)_____ at risk too. According to Otter Working Group, the Singapore otters' main cause of death is vehicle strikes, with about five to six animals killed a year. However, the otters are definitely here to stay and may have adapted well in highly urbanised Singapore.

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

Ah Lim slouched against the curved wall of the underpass. His sunken eyes stared hopefully at each person who passed by. It was nearly lunchtime. His knees ached from standing for the past three hours and the rumbling in his stomach got more insistent. His upturned cap hung limply in his hand, empty.

To distract himself, he opened up a precious packet of tissue paper. Pulling out a piece of tissue paper, he started to fold it. His hands trembled as the effect of Parkinson's disease had recently started to torment him. He had little control over the feathery tissue and the folds were uneven. An hour passed and his work was finally complete. A graceful crane bent its head towards him in his hand.

Further down in the underpass, a middle-aged man played an upbeat tune on his guitar. He had caught the crowd at the right time. Feeling magnanimous, they dropped their ten-cent and twenty-cent coins into his little metal box.

When the lunchtime crowd reached Ah Lim, they had no more change on them and deliberately ignored his gaze as he held his tissue packets out towards them. Some of them would remember to buy from him the next day as they would come in handy to reserve their seats in the hawker centre.

Four hours. Two dollars. Lunch was still impossible. Some rice and vegetables would cost him more than that. The musician swayed with his guitar as the crowd tapped their feet to the beat and snapped their fingers to the rhythm. Ah Lim watched enviously as the crowd chucked coin after coin into the metal box. Ah Lim desperately wished he was given just another dollar. That would have been enough to buy himself some lunch.

The rumbling in the old man's stomach churned his insides. Staggering, he moved towards the musician. Maybe he could ask him for a dollar. They would exchange a friendly nod every now and then. Feeling hopeful, Ah Lim went over to him. Guessing his intent, the musician shut his metal box and slid his guitar back into his case, two verses left unsung. He turned his back and walked away briskly.

Exhausted, Ah Lim leaned against the familiar curve of the wall. He held out his hands weakly, a tissue packet in one hand, his cap in the other, with the tissue-paper crane inside. The underpass was empty and silent. It was half past two.

The movement in his hands was uncontrollable now. He was unable to grasp the tissue packet and it slipped to the ground softly. He leaned over to pick it up, but his vision had become blurred. His breathing turned into short gasps. The acid in his stomach burned. He reached for the tissue packet again but missed it. Then, he started tumbling to the ground and hit his head.

Before losing consciousness, he saw a little girl at the edge of the underpass, running towards him. She stopped in front of him and stared hard, ignoring her mother's agitated screams for her to stop running. She picked up the tissue-paper crane, put a dollar coin into his cap and muttered a 'thank you' before skipping towards her mother. "What's that?" her mother demanded.

Downloaded from SingaKids.com

"A bird! A bird!" she squealed playfully.

Her mother stared at Ah Lim who was lying on the floor. She covered her nose and grimaced when she noticed an empty can at his feet. She snatched the tissue-paper crane from her daughter, but she struggled and wanted to keep it. Then she smacked her daughter hard on her hand, tore it from her hands and squashed it. "Dirty!" she exclaimed as she threw a judgemental look at Ah Lim who was in his torn and stained clothing. The little girl started to cry but her mother dragged her out of the underpass, not noticing the pool of blood that had started to seep into the concrete of the underpass. 45
