"Mother," said a little mouse, "the people in our house are so kind! They leave such nice things for us in the kitchen!"

"People are not as kind as you think. Greywhiskers, remember that you are not allowed to leave our mouse-hole by yourself as it is dangerous," warned Mother Mouse.

Greywhiskers nodded his head, but he had other plans. As soon as his mother had curled up for her daily nap, he scampered out of the mouse-hole to the kitchen.

He saw a cake on the table. Greywhiskers sniffed the cake, then nibbled on it greedily. The cake was not only fragrant, but also scrumptious! When he got home, he was scolded by his mother for disobeying her. He promised her that he would not do it again.

However, the naughty little mouse went to the kitchen again the next day. He saw his favourite cheese and ran forward to get it, but something snapped shut, trapping him. It was a mouse trap! Greywhiskers sobbed in a corner of the trap, wishing he had listened to his mother.

Soon, the man who had set the trap came. He saw the little mouse and said to a little girl, "See who ate your cake Ethel! I'm going to get rid of it."

Ethel felt sorry for the mouse. Before the man could do anything, she lifted the lid of the trap, and the little mouse scurried home as quickly as it could.
