The Best Basic Photography Course

conducted by Picstory

Awards
Photography Course of the Year (2019,2021)
Annual Service Excellence (2020, 2021)

We have taught the basics of photography to beginners around the world for the past 20 years in our Basic Photography Course. Our course stands out as participants will get to learn how to develop a photographic eye.

A photographer does not need expensive equipment to take great photographs. The best camera gear in the world is not going to help a photographer be aware of his surroundings. With a photographic eye, you will see things in a way that others do not. This different way of seeing is what makes an impression on the people viewing your images.

What participants have said:

"At first, I was afraid that I would have problems understanding the technical terms used in photography. However, this course proved me wrong! The instructor made the content so fun and easy to learn. I'll definitely be back for more photography lessons!

Rina

"I enjoyed all of my lessons, especially the lesson on night photography. The instructor was knowledgeable and patient. I can confidently say that my photography skills have improved because of him. Thank you!

When you are caught in a massive train breakdown, what do you do? It is usual for tempers to flare when things do not go the way they should. Hence, negative comments (29) [ ] are common on social media whenever there is a train disrupt.

However, there are some Singaporeans who choose to take a positive approach by (30) [ ] taking things into his own hands. Voluntary groups have sprung up online recently, provide (31) [ ] support to one another in the event of a train breakdown. The groups give real-time updates and suggest allternatiev routes. (32) [ ] (33) [ ]

"The frequent breakdowns and conjestions are making many Singaporeans unhappy. I hope to encourage others to do their part and stays calm," one volunteer group founder (34) [ ] tells The Sunday Times. (35) [ ]

Thus, whenever a train breaks down, be the hero to help ease the situeation by encouraging others in the komiunitty to think positively. Perhaps the next time you (36) [ ] encounter a train delay, keep calm and think positive.

Read the passage below and answer questions 49 to 52. (8 marks)

"Aria?" Mrs. Moore called out in her friendliest voice. "Aria, can you unmute yourself and tell us what you're thankful for today?" With her heartbeat racing, Aria shifted away from the camera of her computer. There were forty ice-cream sticks with the students' names written on them in Mrs Moore's jar. She used these to call on the students in her class.

"Come on, Aria," the teacher coaxed. "We want to see what your leaf says." Aria held her orange construction paper leaf up to the camera lens so that it covered her entire face.

"I see your leaf," Mrs. Moore observed, her voice still cheerful. "Can you move it back so we can read what it says?" Aria sat still in front of her computer. She was dizzy as she was the focus of her classmates' attention. This had always been a challenge for her. In school, the other students could focus their attention elsewhere. Now, on the computer, there was nowhere else to look.

With her classmates looking at her, together with the teacher, Aria could feel a lump in her throat. It was best to get this over with. She looked at her screen and adjusted her leaf so that the letters were visible to the class. The class could now see her answer 'Choklit rasins' in her neat handwriting.

"Thank you! Does that say chocolate raisins?" Mrs Moore asked. Aria slowly nodded, hiding behind her leaf again. "Yummy! Who else is thankful for chocolate raisins?" At her teacher's prompting, Aria watched many of her classmates giving the thumbs-up sign. They had learned this way to silently agree with one another during online lessons.

The class was moving on. Heaving a sigh of relief, Aria relaxed. Since her name had been called, she felt safe for now. She was now free to daydream...

She imagined whispering her secrets to the wind. In her dream, the wind whispered back! She could feel the wind tickling her ears and brushing against her shoulders. Aria was sure she heard the wind saying, "Don't be afraid, Aria. Believe in yourself." This made Aria smile.

Out of the blue, Aria heard her name being called again. The sound of her own name snapped her back to reality. No student had ever been called twice before! Aria had not raised her hand and neither was Mrs. Moore pulling sticks from her jar. Aria wondered if her newfound confidence had shown on her face and that was why Mrs. Moore had called her.

This time round, Aria decided to take up the challenge and face her fear. She needed to believe in herself. She could do this! Aria sat upright in her chair.

"Aria, what did you do over the weekend?" Mrs. Moore asked. She promptly unmuted her microphone and eagerly got ready to speak.
