"My husband and I took our parents and three children on this tour. The coach driver, Mr Koh, and tour guide, Bridget, made us feel very safe, comfortable and relaxed throughout the trip! Bridget knew a lot about all the places we visited! At first, I was afraid that my children would get tired of listening to all that information. I felt extremely relieved when I realised that I was unduly worried! Bridget was so humorous that all of us thoroughly enjoyed listening to her commentaries! The meals were excellent and my children had fun trying all the different types of fruits, some they had never seen before! We had a great time!"

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

"The first day of band camp has been a blast!" Laura exclaimed excitedly. Earlier that day, Laura and forty of her bandmates had reported to school for their annual band camp. Laura had been looking forward to the camp. To her, it would be extremely fun to spend extended time with her close friends, Aisha ,Gopal and Joe. The four of them were affectionately known as 'The Quadruplets' by their bandmates as they would often hang out with one another even outside of band practice.

Before retiring for the night, the four friends had made a pact to meet for a quick night snack together at the canteen. "Where's Aisha?" Joe questioned. Laura shared that Aisha was feeling under the weather. Hence, she had decided to turn in earlier that night. Over some hot drinks and biscuits, the three friends chatted animatedly with one another.

"The first day of band camp has been a blast! What was the highlight of the day for you guys?" Laura asked. Without hesitation, Gopal, the band's student leader, shared, "Perfecting that difficult piece we have been practising for the whole month!" Joe nodded in agreement. Seconds later, Laura added, "I also liked the campfire rehearsal! It was so much fun!" Soon, the three friends decided to make their way back to the classrooms for a much needed rest. It had been a tiring but rewarding day.

While walking along the corridor, the three of them saw someone crouching in the distance. Was that person in trouble? Concerned, they quickened their pace."Aisha, is that you?" Laura asked hesitantly. Realising that it was indeed Aisha, the three friends rushed towards her. Aisha's face was drained of colour. Immediately, Laura, together with Gopal and Joe, helped Aisha onto her feet and assisted her back to the classroom. Then, Aisha shared that her stomach was in knots and she was suffering from diarrhoea, having gone to the toilet five times in the last hour.

To make matters worse, Aisha mentioned that there were several bandmates who were also in the toilet. They seemed to be showing similar symptoms as her Learning that raised the alarm bells for Gopal. Decisively, he instructed Laura and Joe to go around and check on the well-being of their bandmates while he looked for their teacher-in-charge, Ms Teo. Gopal also asked a junior to look after Aisha in their absence. Instantly , the three friends set off to fulfil their respective tasks.

Despite the stressful episode, Gopal calmly recounted the situation to Ms Teo when he had located her. Moments later, they headed to the classrooms to determine the severity of the situation. As time ticked by, at least half of the band members had started to exhibit signs of stomach discomfort or diarrhoea. "Seems like a case of mass food poisoning," Ms Teo uttered. As Ms Teo busily arranged for the unwell band members to be taken home by their parents, Gopal got the rest to tend to their peers who were ill. In unrehearsed unison, everyone did what they could to make the situation better.

The next morning, the band camp had to be called off prematurely. Gopal, Laura and Joe hoped that Aisha and the afflicted band members would recover soon. Ms Teo assured everyone that the school would get to the root of the problem. Before the rest of the members were dismissed, Ms Teo shared how proud she was of everyone. That very affirmation warmed the hearts of the band members.
