Section F: Comprehension Open-Ended – Passage A (8 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

In the river lived a large crocodile. He was a very selfish crocodile as he did not want other animals to come to the river.

Every day, he shouted at the animals, "Stay away from my river! If you come into my river, I'll eat you up!" All the animals were afraid of him.

However, one morning, the crocodile made a loud groan. He was holding his swollen jaw, crying in agony.

Some of the animals felt sorry for the crocodile but no one dared to help. They were at a loss of what to do.

Suddenly, a little mouse ran towards the crocodile while the other animals stared in horror. They were worried that the mouse would be eaten up.

The agile mouse crept into the crocodile's big open mouth. He pulled at a tooth with all his might. Soon, he came out, holding the enormous crocodile tooth. The mouse told the crocodile, "Your toothache was caused by this decayed tooth!" The crocodile thanked the fearless and selfless mouse.

Realising how self-centred he was, the crocodile invited the animals back to the river. "Please come back. The river belongs to us!" the crocodile pleaded. No longer frightened, the delighted animals returned and the river became a busy and lively place like what it used to be.

Section G: Comprehension Open-Ended – Passage B (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Your answers must be based on the passage.

Wendy squinted to see what was swirling around in the air. It was the first time she was experiencing a hurricane and it was certainly far from pleasant.

"It's a dog!" Mr Andrews, her neighbour, shouted. Wendy gasped as the small, brown dog landed on the ground and tried to take a step forward but was pushed back further. It fell into a big drain. Fighting for its life, it swam through the rising waters, trying to keep its head above.

"We've got to get it," Wendy said anxiously, pushing at the glass door. It was locked. She tried to turn the doorknob.

"Young lady, what are you doing?" Mr Andrews shouted, running towards her.

Wendy pointed at a distance. "The dog's caught in the storm. It'll drown or be swept away. We have to rescue it."

The howl of the wind sounded like wolves calling out to others in their pack. It sent shivers down Wendy's spine. Chairs, tablecloth and everything else that was outside flew past the door, caught in the wind.

Mr Andrews leaned against the door as he replied, "I'm sorry about the dog, but you can't go out there. It's too dangerous. You could be swept away, too. Or hit by the debris flying in the wind."

Wendy thought to herself, "Many pets are lost during hurricanes. That dog deserves to live. Why is Mr Andrews so heartless?" Taking a deep breath, she started to argue with him that they should still try to save the dog.

Wendy looked out to see the dog struggling to get on a branch. She looked around desperately and her eyes were fixed on some rope in the corner. Without hesitation, she went over to grab it and ran towards the door.
