Section C : Comprehension (8 marks)

Read the passage below and answer questions 17 to 21.

Alia's mother usually drives her to school. That morning she said, "I am sorry honey, you'll have to walk today. I am busy! I have to fix the kitchen sink. It's leaking again!" Alia's school was a five-minute drive away. It would take longer to walk there. Alia sighed, picked up her backpack and left the house.

Fifteen minutes later, Alia entered the school gate. She heard a faint noise. It was coming from the playground. It grew louder and louder. Feeling curious, Alia ran towards the playground. It was deserted except for a man with an old run-down truck with tree-cutting equipment at the back. Alia mustered her courage and ran up to the man. She asked him if he was going to cut down the huge tree there. There was no reply.

"Please do not cut it down! That is where my friend Sally and I have lots of fun," Alia tried to reason with the man.

"Well, that is not my problem," the man snorted.

Alia continued, "Please stop! We need to save the trees! No one will be able to breathe! They provide us with oxygen! They also shade us from the sun!"

Sadly, her words fell on deaf ears. The man started the tree-cutting machine. Suddenly, it started to rain. The man quickly turned off the machine and left. Alia smiled. Nature was on her side.

Section F: Comprehension 2 (10 marks)

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

When my dog, Rex, was seven years old, his intense fear of thunder finally made sense to me. I was in the garden. The skies grew darker as I dug a patch of grass to make a vegetable plot.

Rex paced anxiously around me as his instincts told him that a storm was looming. I sensed the storm too. However, I wanted to get the work done, so I decided to continue working until the first raindrop fell. I kept glancing at the sky. I could see black clouds gathering in the distance. Rex was whining softly, as if to persuade me to head inside.

"Don't worry," I told him. "It is still far away."

The words had barely left my lips when I felt a tingle on the back of my neck. Then, I heard the buzzing and crackling surge of energy. At once, a deafening sound filled the air. I knew trouble was coming, but I had no time to react. Seconds later, a wall of energy hit me in the chest and everything turned black.

When I opened my eyes, I was lying face down on the ground. Rex was lying next to me. When he saw me raise my head, he inched towards me. Then, he buried his snout in my neck and licked me frantically.

I scrambled to my feet as bolts of lightning flashed around us. Rex and I sprinted towards the front door. We did not stop until we reached safety.

Inside the house, Rex was shaking uncontrollably. I hugged him tightly. I was trembling too.

"That was a close shave!" I said nervously. Rex looked up at me with his big eyes as if he was trying to say, "Kevin, I told you so!"

Never again would I dismiss his fear of this deadly force of nature.
