For each question from 11 to 15, choose the word closest in meaning to the underlined word. Shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (5 marks)

My heart was beating fast. I was on tenterhooks (11) even before I got ready for the 400-metre race. My doctor had reminded me that taking part in this race would worsen my health condition. Sweat was trickling down my face, making my anxiety obvious (12) to the other participants around me. Nevertheless, I was determined to represent my school in the race as it was my only chance to prove to myself that I could accomplish something.

Once I heard the sound from the starter gun, I ran like the wind. Then my worst fear came true. My knees buckled under pressure and I felt a sharp pain. My legs gave way and I fell helplessly (13) to the ground. Everything around me became dark. Thankfully, within seconds, I managed to regain consciousness (14). The pain was unbearable. However, I was unfazed (15) and picked myself up. Slowly, I limped my way to the finish line. The crowd gave a thunderous applause and I was proud of my perseverance.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 49 to 53 in Booklet B.

Over thirty years of camping vacations, Jack had never experienced or heard of a wolf attack. This changed last June while he was camping with his wife and two sons at Banff National Park. Jack and his family had always wanted to camp there as it was well known for its scenic view and tranquillity. However, there were also reports of sightings of wolves. Signs about them had been put up around the campsites to advise campers to stay vigilant especially at night. Yet, Jack and his family decided to go ahead with the long-awaited summer camping vacation. Everything went as planned and the family had a whale of a time. They also made friends with another man named Matt who was camping alone at the next campsite. Night fell. At around midnight, Jack awoke to the sound of a panicked voice calling for help. Sensing trouble, he decided to investigate at the next campsite.

As Jack approached the other campsite, he caught sight of an animal's rear legs protruding from a collapsed tent. The legs were too large to belong to a dog. Matt shouted and that startled the animal which backed out of the tent. Suddenly, Jack was standing face to face with a wolf. "That was a terrifying moment," he recalled. Matt jumped out of the collapsed tent covered in blood. Moments earlier, the wolf had ripped through the tent, puncturing his arm and tearing part of the tent. Jack threw rocks at the wolf to scare it away. However, the wolf bared its teeth with its ears pointed, all ready to attack Jack. Jack was horrified but quickly regained his composure. He recalled what he had read from a newspaper article some time ago. If one were to be confronted by a wolf, the person should use fire to scare the wolf off. Instantaneously, Jack picked up a fire stick from the campfire and waved it frantically at the wolf. The wolf backed off and ran back into the woods.

Jack immediately helped Matt into his van and drove him to the nearest hospital to receive treatment. Matt, who received twenty stitches to close his wound, was truly grateful to Jack. Later that night, a few park rangers caught the wolf. The park rangers shared that such wolf attacks were so rare one had a greater chance of being killed by a dog, lightning, a bee sting, or a car collision with a deer than being injured by a wolf. However, some wolves simply had no fear for humans especially since some were feeding the wolves at campsites.

Thankfully, after months of recuperation, Matt's wounds finally healed completely. Jack, whom Matt regarded as his guardian angel, still kept in touch with him over social media. The two men even exchanged Christmas gifts. In an interview, Jack admitted to a fleeting thought during the heat of battle. The moment the wolf had locked eyes with him, Jack thought, "Why am I here and what if I die?"

Each of the underlined words contains either a spelling or grammatical error. Write the correct word in each of the boxes. (8 marks)

There is an increase in Personal Mobility Devices (PMDs) that catch fire easily. This (29) [ ] happens instead of the batteries that have short-circuited. A professor from the National (30) [ ] University of Singapore told the Straits Times in an interviewed that using batteries from (31) [ ] an unreliable source and overcharged PMDs can cause such fires. In addition, using a (32) [ ] charger that is not compatible is another reason when the batteries in the PMDs will short-circuit.

(33) [ ] "The recent incident of a PMD catching fire in a lift was an unfortunete incident," remarked a resident living in the same block. "It is rare for a PMD battery to catch fire (34) [ ] when it is not in use," commented another expert. To elemenate such accidents, PMDs must (35) [ ] meet safety standards imposed by the gahvenment.

(36) [ ] A certified PMD is fitted with sensor tecnologi. It shuts down the PMD once it detects that the battery has been overheated. Thus, it is important for PMD users to make sure that they do not leave their mobility devices unattended when charging them.

There was a park with a small lake near my house which was home to many aquatic creatures. I liked to jog in this park during the weekends. One Sunday morning, as I was _____ (37) around the lake, I noticed an elderly woman sitting by the water with a metal cage beside her.

_____ (38) I took a closer look, I saw a few turtles inside the cage. The lady took _____ (39) of the turtles and gently scrubbed the shell with a sponge brush. Out of _____ (40), I asked her what she was doing.

The lady replied, "I am scrubbing the turtle's shell. Turtles accumulate algae on their shells, which weigh them _____ (41) and hamper their swimming abilities. Over time, their shells become weak and corrode away." She continued, "This is my little way to _____ (42) that these little creatures will survive."

I was not convinced. While I appreciated her efforts, I thought that all other turtles in the world are living with algae on _____ (43) shells. Her efforts would not make an impact to every one of them.

As the lady continued to clean the last bit of algae from the turtle on her lap, she looked up at me and said, "If this little one could _____ (44), he would gladly tell you that my care towards him is important to his survival."

I finally realised that every little act of kindness counts and each person can change the world in his or her own way.
