"Leo! Where are you?" Jane called in a trembling voice as she scanned her surroundings anxiously. Her pet cat was lost! That morning, Jane was rushing out of the house as she was late for school. In her hurry, she had left the gate unlocked. When she returned home after school, she realised that Leo had disappeared! Immediately, she started searching for Leo around her neighbourhood but to no avail. As Jane dragged herself home wearily, she wondered where Leo could be.

Suddenly, Jane had an idea. She could make "Lost Cat" posters and put them around her neighbourhood! Soon, she had printed several posters with a photograph of Leo and her home telephone number on them. Then, she pasted the posters on the lamp posts around her house. Feeling optimistic, she returned home.

The next day, Jane received a call from her neighbour, Mr Lim. He had spotted a cat that looked like hers in the park! As fast as wind, Jane sped to the park. Indeed, Leo was hiding under some thick bushes.

Jane squealed in delight and stroked Leo. She told herself to never forget to close the gates again. She also paid Mr Lim a visit and thanked him profusely for his help.

With a satisfied grin, he placed it on the dining table. In the kitchen, Jack had baked a fragrant butter cake by referring to their mother's cookbook.

At seven o'clock, the boys crouched behind the sofa and waited silently. Creak! As the boys heard the door open, they held their breath.

"We're home! Where are...?" their mother began to ask when they leapt up.

In unison, the brothers yelled like banshees, "Happy anniversary!"

Their parents' eyes brightened with joy when they saw the cake and the box of paper cranes.

"Boys, thank you for remembering our wedding anniversary and preparing this surprise. You are such caring children!" their parents chuckled. They enveloped the boys in a bear hug.
