Section C – Comprehension – Open-ended (5 x 2 marks)
Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

A rich man bought over a herd of elephants. One day, he brought his son to the elephant camp to look at the elephants. The animals were grazing on the fields and each had a thin, long rope tied around one ankle. The boy asked his father why the elephants did not use their strength to break the rope and escape from the camp. Given their size, they could easily have done so but they did not try to at all.

His father was equally puzzled. He thought the trainer must have worked some trick on them. Wanting to solve the mystery, the man brought his son to ask the trainer.

The trainer explained, "When the elephants were young calves, they tried to escape many times. I tied a rope around one ankle of each elephant. Back then, it was strong enough to restrain the young elephant. Each time they tried to run, they failed. They grew up believing that they would not be able to break away."

The son remarked, "The elephants are so silly."

Hearing his son's comment, the man advised him, "Son, some people are like these elephants and go through life thinking they cannot do something because they have failed at it in the past. Unlike them, we should not be discouraged when we fall and we should never give up easily."

The boy nodded his head as he had learnt a valuable lesson.
