Many of us often struggle with being self-disciplined. There are crucial (16) tasks we know we have to complete before moving on to others, but our body just does not want to comply. Self-discipline is the ability to overcome this obstacle. Without it, it is hard for us to see improvement (17) in our life. From learning an instrument to picking up (18) a new language, experts recommend setting aside at least twenty minutes a day for consistent (19) practice. This is harder than it seems. When we first learn a new skill, we might enthusiastically commit hours to it, but after a month or two, our interest wanes and we stop altogether. It is precisely (20) in such moments of discouragement that we need to push on and persevere. This requires good time management and self-discipline.

What you can expect

The Basics

Our experienced fishermen will teach you the basics of fishing at our onsite pond such as:

- how to select and set up your fishing rod
- how to bait and cast a line
- how to successfully reel in a fish without snapping the line
- how to prepare your catch for a meal

Half-day Boat Trip

It's practice time! After a delicious breakfast, we will travel out to sea. For the entire afternoon, enjoy a relaxing time fishing and cooking! Unlike other fishing boats which may have a bigger seating capacity, our fishing boat has a specially outfitted kitchen for you to cook your catch as you like. Our friendly on-board staff will provide any assistance you need throughout the trip.

Read the passage below when you answer questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B.

Many years ago, two farmers named Ravi and Sanjay were returning home from the fields when they stumbled upon a pot of gold lying by the roadside. They were struggling farmers who lived modestly and had few possessions.

They were taken aback to see such wealth lying before their eyes, and they knew that this could change their lives for the better. They both saw this discovery as an auspicious sign and decided to keep it for themselves. However, as Ravi and Sanjay began to walk away with the pot, a conflict arose. They looked at each other, speechless for a moment. Then, Ravi said, "How are we going to divide this immense wealth?"

Sanjay replied enthusiastically, "We split it equally between us, of course!"

Ravi, on the other hand, hesitated. "Should we keep it for ourselves, or share it with the other villagers? After all, conditions in our village have been bleak lately due to long periods of poor harvest."

Sanjay's expression changed. "What do you mean share it? We found it! It's ours!"

Sanjay felt that they had worked hard for years, and that the gold was a reward for their efforts. Ravi, however, felt that they should share the gold with the other struggling villagers as they, too, deserved a chance to improve their livelihood. Ravi argued that it was the right thing to do, and that the pair would be seen as greedy if they kept the gold all for themselves. The two friends could not agree on what to do with the gold, and their argument escalated. The shouting intensified, and it seemed as though their friendship might be at risk.

The next morning, they had a meeting with the respected village chief, who was a wise man. He had learned about their disagreement. He listened to them attentively and suggested that they use the gold for the community's good. He reminded them that sharing the gold with the villagers would benefit everyone in the village, allowing it to prosper, and also benefit them in ways beyond what keeping the gold for themselves could achieve. Ravi and Sanjay were convinced and accepted his advice.

The news about the gold spread quickly throughout the village. People discussed it wherever they went. Ravi and Sanjay were certain about what to do. They wanted to share the gold with everyone. Gathering the villagers, they shared their decision. It was a joyous occasion as the villagers collectively decided to use the newfound wealth to build a new school, a community centre, and acquire better farming tools and equipment, allowing them to grow and harvest better crops. True to their team spirit, everyone pitched in and collaborated. Some laid bricks, while others measured and cut wood. Through their hard work, the school and community centre began to take shape.

Hearing of how the village was slowly thriving again, those who had left to find work elsewhere began returning with new skills and resources. Immediately, the village was filled with joy and renewed hope. Ravi and Sanjay became highly respected figures in the community, even having schools named after them. Their friendship grew stronger through this shared experience. To this day, the school and community centre constructed serve as a powerful reminder of their remarkable community spirit.

Alaskan fishermen head out to the Bering Sea every winter to harvest snow crabs. However, officials announced that the upcoming snow crab harvesting season _____ (29) been cancelled due to a sharp decline in their population. Ocean surveys of the sea crab population indicate that _____ (30) has shrunk from an estimated 11.9 billion in 2018 to about 1.9 billion in 2022.

Researchers are still determining _____ (31) the snow crabs have vanished. They suspect climate change _____ (32) have played a significant role. Young snow crabs thrive in the cold-water pools which are formed _____ (33) the ocean floor by the melting sea ice. Since 2018, the Bering Sea water temperatures have become _____ (34) warmer than usual.

Scientists speculate that the young crabs could have been forced to live in smaller areas. The limited food supply may have caused _____ (35) to die of starvation. The cramped conditions could also have led to the spread _____ (36) deadly diseases. Another theory is _____ (37) the warmer waters made the young crabs vulnerable to predators like the Pacific Cod.

Solving the mystery of the missing snow crabs will take time. Meanwhile, the unexpected harvest cancellation has left Alaskan fishermen scrambling to find other sources of income. The snow crabs _____ (38) by far the most abundant of all the Bering Sea crab species caught commercially. Hopefully, the snow crab population will be revived before next year's fishing season.

Bumblebees have a reputation for being hardworking creatures. The insects (39) [ ] are know to spend their days collecting pollen and nectar from flowers. However, fresh evidence from a study by the Queen Mary University of London suggests that, like humans, (40) [ ] the bees also enjoyed a little playtime.

(41) [ ]

In the study, researchers repeatedly taught the bees to roll a ball in axechange for (42) [ ] food. The researchers then investigaitted if the insects were "playing" with the balls. In the first experiment, forty-five bumblebees were led through a tunnel with two paths. The (43) [ ] first path led streight to a chamber with food, and the second led to a chamber filled with small wooden balls.

(44) [ ]

To the researchers' supprise, the bees kept choosing the chamber with the balls. Once (45) [ ] there, they started rolling the balls, even by no incentive.

(46) [ ]

The researchers repeated the experiment and found that the bees still preffered (47) [ ] going to the same chamber even after removing the balls. A younger bees spent more time playing in both experiments than the adults.

(48) [ ] (49) [ ]

One active little bee be even observed rolling the ball 117 times! The playful enticks may (50) [ ] prove that the bees' minds are much more complex than previous thought. Despite their little size and tiny brains, bumblebees are more than small robotic beings.
