A long time ago, there was a boy named Meng who lived with his mother in a village. One day, his mother made rice cakes and a pie. She instructed him to take some of the food to his aunt who lived in the town. "These rice cakes and pie are very delicate. You must not shake this box. Carry it carefully," Mother advised Meng. He took the box and set off.

As Meng was walking, he said to himself, "I must not shake this important box." When he was walking down the path next to the rice field, a frog jumped onto the path. "Oops!" Meng shouted as he leapt backwards. He sighed in relief when he realised that he had not shaken the box.

Next, Meng reached a small stream. He jumped over it as he did not want to get his shoes wet. "Good, good, I did not shake it!"

At last, Meng arrived at his aunt's house in the town. He handed the box to her. His curious aunt wondered, "What is inside this box? What can it be?" She was so impatient that she quickly grabbed the box, put her ear to it and listened. There was no sound and she became more curious... She shook it all up!

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Tammy hated Sundays. Everybody else hated Mondays the most but Tammy thought Sundays were harder to get through. Sunday was supposed to be a fun and relaxing day but Tammy could not relax at the thought of having to go to school the next day.

That Sunday was harder than usual. Tammy had to pack her bag for a school excursion that she did not want to go for the next day. Her class would be hiking at the nature park. Dad had been trying to convince her that she would love it when she got there.

Tammy wondered if Dad even cared for her safety. She was afraid of falling. She was also anxious about getting lost. Dad nodded solemnly. "Of course we care, but we think that hiking will do you more good than harm. It's always good to have new experiences," Dad replied.

Tammy was unconvinced. She had always been afraid of the outdoors. Being surrounded by tall trees made her feel uneasy. A ferocious creature could be hiding in the shadows, waiting to pounce on her. Tammy imagined being chased by a hungry wolf. She squeezed her eyes shut and shuddered. Dad put his comforting arm around Tammy's shoulders and sat closer to her.

"How about you bring Titi, your favourite stuffed tiger, along for the excursion? You could hug it when you feel scared," Dad suggested. Tammy opened her eyes widely. "You're right, Dad!" she exclaimed as she grabbed Titi from her bed.
