Section C: Comprehension (8 marks)

Read the passage below and answer questions 15 to 19.

Leo loved animals. He found a thin and scrawny dog abandoned at a bus stop one day and brought it home. He begged his parents to let him keep the dog and promised to be responsible and take good care of it. He was thrilled when his parents finally agreed. Leo named the dog 'Lucky'.

A few days passed. Leo became busy with school and his own activities. He left his parents to care for Lucky. One day, Leo's parents had to leave for a work trip, and Leo was given the task of taking care of Lucky. His parents reminded him to feed Lucky, walk him, and play with him. As the day went on, Leo became distracted by his video games. He had forgotten all about Lucky.

When his parents returned, they noticed that Lucky was restless and hungry. They reminded Leo of his responsibilities. Leo felt ashamed and realised that he had not kept to his promise. The next morning, Leo created a timetable to ensure that he fed Lucky and took him for walks. He also included gaming in it although he had cut down his playing time.

Over time, Lucky grew healthier and happier. Leo's parents praised him for his dedication. Leo felt proud and learned that being responsible meant keeping his promises and taking care of those who depend on him.

Section H: Comprehension 2 (10 marks)

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Nadia was five when she first kicked a football. It was just a worn-out ball she had found at her void deck. However, it was a treasure to her. While most girls her age played with dolls or practised ballet, she would spend hours kicking a ball. She disliked playing with tea sets or playing dress up like her friends. Every day, she practised on the small patch of grass behind her house. Her dream was to become a football player.

In Singapore then, people believed football was for boys. Nadia did not care. She joined a boys' team. At first, the boys laughed at her, and the coaches doubted her abilities. "Girls don't play football," the boys used to tease her. "She'll never make it," some of the parents said.

Even her own grandmother told her, "Football isn't for girls, Nadia. You should find something more suitable, like learning how to cook."

Her grandmother's words fell on deaf ears. Nadia refused to give up. She worked on her speed and dribbling technique after the boys in her team had gone home. She would also practise shooting until the sun set. Her parents supported her dream, cheering her on at every match. The road was tough but her passion kept her going.

By the time Nadia turned eighteen, she was selected to play for the Singapore National Team. As she stood on the field in her national jersey, Nadia thought of her grandmother's words and smiled. Football was for anyone who dared to dream. Nadia had followed hers and worked hard to achieve it. Now she is a star, inspiring girls across Singapore to play a game that has mostly been played by boys.
