Read this passage and answer questions 31 to 37. (8 marks)

One afternoon, Ming and his sister saw that their parents were busy farming. They secretly went to a nearby pond to catch some fish. Ming brought along his lucky toy for good luck. The family's dog, Billy, joined them. Soon, the children were fishing.

"Oh no!" yelled Ming suddenly. His sister, who was usually careful, had accidentally dropped his toy into the pond. While his sister ran home to get help, Ming tried to retrieve the toy by himself. He leaned over the edge of the pond, hands outstretched.

Billy saw the danger. It barked and ran towards Ming. As Ming was about to fall into the pond, Billy gently grabbed his shirt with its jaws and pulled him away from the water. Ming stumbled back and fell onto the soft grass. "My toy..." he whined as the toy floated away.

Sensing his sadness, Billy licked Ming's face. Then, it picked up a small fishing net lying nearby with its jaws. Slowly, it dipped the net into the pond and scooped up the toy. Then, Billy brought the toy to Ming. Grateful for its help, Ming smiled and hugged his dog.

Ming's parents later learned that Billy had saved Ming. Feeling thankful, they gave it some tasty treats. It wagged its tail and gobbled them up.

Read this passage and answer questions 38 to 45. (10 marks)

It was the first day of school. Ben ran into his classroom with his new bag bouncing against his side. He was keen to show off the bag to his friends. Taking his seat, he saw a new student next to him – quiet, eyes down, hands holding a worn-out bag tightly.

His name was Zaki. Ben greeted him, expecting a reply. Yet, Zaki stared at the floor silently, leaving Ben feeling uncomfortable. However, Ben kept a straight face.

During lunch break, Ben spotted Zaki eating a plain bun he had brought from home, all alone. Around him, others were having hot meals from different stalls. Zaki's bag was torn and had many holes in it. It looked like his books could fall out at any moment.

Worried, Ben decided to keep an eye on Zaki.

A week passed. Ben noticed that during every lunch break, Zaki would sit alone in the canteen, staring blankly at his bun before taking small bites. He would also wipe away his tears when he thought no one was watching. Ben wondered how he could help him.

That night, he rummaged through his cupboard and located a brand-new bag he had forgotten about. He put a note in it that read:

"This is a gift for you – Ben."

The next morning, he placed the bag on Zaki's chair. When Zaki arrived, he was astonished. As he opened the bag and read the note, his eyes widened in disbelief. Slowly, he turned to Ben. With tears in his eyes, he thanked Ben.

This act of kindness encouraged other students to share their school supplies and play with Zaki during recess.

Ben smiled. His heart was full. He had planted seeds of kindness for Zaki.
