Section E (10 marks)
Read this passage and answer Questions 27 to 33.

"Will we be able to see Baby Aisha next month?" Safina asked her brother, Muthu, the same question every day as they walked home from school. Muthu nodded, knitting his brows. While he was over the moon that their aunt was expecting her second child, he could not wait for the day when he did not have to answer that question anymore.

That evening, Safina's parents were at a restaurant having dinner to celebrate their wedding anniversary. They had just placed their order when the phone rang. Safina's aunt was on her way to the hospital. Safina's mother gasped at the unexpected news. "But the doctor said ..." Safina's mother muttered to herself. Hurriedly, she called her children. She told them to get ready and that they would be home to fetch them to the hospital soon. The whole time, she was like a cat on hot bricks, eager to get out of the restaurant immediately. Safina's father quickly summoned for the waiter to give him a new set of instructions due to the change of plan. In a matter of ten minutes, the food was packed, the bill was paid and they were on their way.

In the car, all of them were talking animatedly about the turn of events. Safina chatted non-stop and kept asking, "Are we there yet?" Father chuckled while Muthu rolled his eyes and put a finger on her lips but to no avail. When they arrived, Safina's grandparents and her other aunts and uncles were pacing up and down outside the hospital room.

About half an hour later, Safina's uncle appeared. On his face was a smile that stretched from ear to ear. Everyone knew that that meant that the baby had arrived. They ran forward to congratulate him. However, they still could not see the baby yet. She had to be weighed, measured and bathed first. After that, the entire family piled into the hospital room to see Safina's aunt and the newborn baby. She looked exhausted but blissful. The baby was tiny, fragile but adorable. All of them took turns to carry her, including Safina.

That night, Safina's parents agreed that that was the most memorable wedding anniversary they had ever had. They had celebrated it by becoming an aunt and uncle once more.
