Text 2

The extract below is taken from a news article about parcel collection lockers.

In Singapore, many people still prefer having their online shopping parcels delivered straight to their homes to using parcel lockers. A study in 2022 showed that only 13 out of every 100 lockers were being used. This is even though there are over 1,000 locker stations placed conveniently around the country – in places like MRT stations, HDB blocks, and community centres.

Most shoppers said they chose home delivery because it is more convenient. Some websites even offer free or cheap delivery to your doorstep. Others said they did not see the locker option when shopping online. Hence, they had not tried it.

Even though locker usage is still low, companies and government agencies hope more shoppers will try it as they learn about the benefits. Using parcel lockers can help reduce traffic from delivery vehicles and lower our carbon footprint, which is better for the Earth. So, why not give parcel lockers a try?

For each question from 21 to 25, choose the best answer. Shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (5 marks)

21. According to the poster in Text 1, users of easyLockers must _____.

(1) collect their parcels within 24 hours
(2) key in a unique access code to retrieve their parcels
(3) share their home address with the delivery personnel to receive their parcels
(4) provide contact details to the delivery personnel to retrieve their parcels

22. "Remember to secure the locker before you leave!". Why did the writer include this line in the poster in Text 1?

(1) To encourage users to leave the area quickly
(2) To remind users to close the lockers for security
(3) To ensure users are aware of the locker's closing time
(4) To make users aware of the importance of keeping the area tidy

23. "Unlock the easy way to get your parcels." The entire picture in the middle of the poster supports this statement by giving the impression that easyLockers are _____.

(1) free for all online shoppers
(2) replacing door-to-door delivery entirely
(3) easily accessible in many parts of Singapore
(4) only useful in emergency situations or during natural disasters

24. Based on the information in both Text 1 and 2, why might parcel lockers be a better option?

(1) They are free to use.
(2) They offer additional discounts on items.
(3) They guarantee faster delivery than home delivery.
(4) They help reduce the number of delivery vehicles on the road.

25. Text 1 tells us the advantages of using parcel lockers. However, based on Text 2, we know that _____.

(1) the parcel lockers are underutilised
(2) the parcel lockers service is temporary
(3) the parcel lockers are confusing to use
(4) the parcel lockers are located at inconvenient places

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B

I thought I was losing my sanity because, far too often, when I arrived at the preschool I ran, I would find the toy cabinet wide open and toys strewn everywhere. The rule was that each child could take out one toy at a time and had to return it before getting another. High up and latched securely, the cabinet was not easily accessible, so I assumed a teacher with access to the key was opening it for them. I raised the issue with the staff, but they denied opening it. Frustrated, I bought a combination lock and shared the code with the teachers who needed access. The first week after installing it, we were relieved to find the cabinet still securely locked.

But first thing on Monday of the following week, the cabinet had been opened again, with toys scattered everywhere. I questioned everyone who was given the lock combination but each insisted that they had not opened it or shared the code. Assuming I had failed to lock it properly, I made sure it was securely locked that day. However, the very next day, the cabinet was wide open again, and toys filled the room once more. It was infuriating and I considered nailing it shut and banning toys altogether. That day, I finally realised the cause of the problem when we gathered the toys. Except those the children were playing with, I put the rest away into the cabinet.

In my flustered state, I locked the cabinet again, forgetting that some toys were still outside. Realising my mistake, I decided to leave it locked until the children were ready to switch toys. When a little girl asked to exchange her toy, a three-year-old boy named Scotty, with the vocabulary of an English professor, offered to help her. I just smiled, thinking he could not open the cabinet. After letting Scotty and the little girl each choose a toy, I put the rest away into the cabinet and locked it again. When Scotty offered to help another child exchange toys, I decided to observe. To my astonishment, he stepped on a stool to reach the lock. Next, he confidently spun the dials of the lock and the cabinet swung wide open.

Downloaded from SingaKids.com

"Scotty, how did you learn to open that?" I gasped. "It was quite elementary," Scotty said with a grin. "I analysed your movements and deduced the combination."

I could only shake my head in disbelief. When his mother arrived to pick him up, I told her about the incident and asked if a keyed lock might be a better option. She laughed. "We tried that, and he figured out how to pick every one we've purchased. That's why all our locks are up high, though he still finds ways to get to them." I was shocked, and asked if there was anything else he did that I should know about.

"Plenty of things," she said with a laugh. "For instance, my husband gave Scotty an old clock he could not fix, thinking it would keep him busy. Scotty spent the day tinkering, with pieces scattered everywhere. By evening, my husband was stunned to find the clock not only reassembled but working perfectly, though I was not surprised in the least. Scotty has always had a knack for figuring things out. So, good luck keeping him out of the cabinet and let me know if you figure out how."

But I never did. I stood there, torn between disbelief and admiration, realising that sometimes the most unexpected answers come from the smallest hands.

Dear Diary,

It was an unforgettable day of outdoor learning with my Primary 6 schoolmates. The morning started off (36) in a sense of excitement as we ventured out into the field for our first hands-on (37) expirience. I was initially very concerned about the (38) complex of the tasks that we needed to do but it turned out quite to be (39) manegeble with the instructor's clear instructions. I was pleasantly surprised by how (40) engaging my schoolmates were in these activities!

We began with a nature walk. We had to observe and describe the different plants and insects we saw. It was a great (41) opurtunity for us to practise using descriptive language. (42) Although struggling to find the right words, we worked well together. It was a wonderful moment of (43) collebaration and Later, we had a group discussion, where we shared what we had discovered. Even the quieter ones found their voice, and I could see their confidence growing. It was indeed a (44) fulfilled day as outdoor learning not only broadened our vocabulary but also built a stronger sense of (45) comunnity among the students. Outdoor learning is definitely fun and meaningful!

The Singapore Food Agency (SFA) is planning to change Lim Chu Kang into a modern farming area that uses less resources to grow more food. This will help Singaporeans produce more of (46) _____ own food and not (47) _____ too much on other countries.

As Singapore buys over 90% of its food (48) _____ other places, we can be vulnerable when other countries face shortage problems. To combat (49) _____, Singapore wants to grow 30% of the food we need by the year 2030. Much support (50) _____ been given by the government to the farmers.

The new farming area will have shared (51) _____ like water and power infrastructure to help farms save money and use fewer resources. It will also try to reduce waste and be more efficient. However, to (52) _____ that different kinds of plants and animals are protected, an environmental study is (53) _____ with the help of environmental experts.

The study looks (54) _____ at the types of plants and animals living in the area, including those (55) _____ may be rare or endangered. Special attention is given to native species that play an (56) _____ role in the local ecosystem. Environmental experts are

Measures such as (57) _____ aside green spaces, creating buffer zones, and using eco-friendly farming methods will help (58)_____ wildlife habitats. For example, trees that birds and insects need will be kept as much as (59) _____, and farming activities will be planned to stay away from areas that are easily harmed.

With careful planning, the new Lim Chu Kang farming area can become a model for how nature and modern agriculture can work hand (60) _____ hand. This balance is key to making sure that Singapore's goal of food security does not come at the cost of its rich biodiversity.
